Web conferencing enables fully interactive meetings for both PC and Mac users as well as sales presentations and product demos.

Remote support automatically sets up a support session between the support person and the user making the user the presenter and the support personnel the controller. The support person can also remotely reboot the user’s computer and have it automatically rejoin the meeting. The user need only join the meeting with the support personnel taking over from there.

“Access to this PC” automatically sets up the PC as a presentation computer giving the remote user keyboard and mouse control. Now you can access and control your PC from anywhere.

TurboMeeting's powerful "View Only" client enables anyone with a browser to join a meeting. The blend of interactive users with "View Only" users enables Web seminars of many to many. Many interactive users (panelists) presenting to large audiences of attendees using View Only and now knowing that everyone can join.

cyLogistics CEO Don Witt said, "All these features in one box provides tremendous value and its easy to host your own Web conferencing system. Our cyLogistics branded Web conferencing system is impressive to our clients".
